Hideki Maki

February 17, 2004

(a practice for using prepositions)

1. Hi, I am Hideki.

Haló, misé Hideki.

2. I am from Japan, as you know.

As an tSeápain mé, mar is eol daoibh.

3. Last Saturday, I went to Belfast Zoo with my wife and son.

Dé Sathairn seo caite, chuaigh mé chuig Zú Bhéal Feirste le mo bhean agus mo mhac.

4. We saw a lot of animals there.

Chonaiceamar a lán ainmhí ansin.

5. There were elephants, penguins, birds, monkeys, giraffes, zebras, pigs, tigers, and so on.

Bhí eilifintí, piongainí, éanlaith, moncaíthe, sioráif, séabraí, muca, tíogaír, agus mar sin de ann.

6. Let me explain where they are.

Déarfaidh mé cá bhíodar siad.

7. The giraffe is between the two zebras and the bird.

Tá an sioráf idir an dá séabra agus an t-éan.

8. The elephant is across from the penguin and the girl.

Tá an eilifint trasna ón phiongain agus ón cailín.

9. The girl is beside the penguin.

Tá an cailín in aice leis an phiongain.

10. The monkeys are beside the elephant.

Tá na moncaíthe in aice leis an eilifint.

11. The zebras are between the giraffe and the tiger.

Tá na séabraí idir an sioráf agus an tíogar.

12. The pigs are across from the tiger.

Tá na muca trasna ón tíogar.

13. You got it?

Ceart go leor? / An bhfuil sé agat anois?

14. Thank you very much.

Go raibh maith agat.
